HomeFed moves operations

HomeFed Bank's Lemon Grove branch has relocated to 3490 College Avenue.

The old location, 3301 College Avenue, was closed at the end of the business day on Friday, December 8. All accounts and account information were transferred to the new location, which opened for business Monday, December 11, at 10 a.m.

"The spacious new facility provides greater conveniences by adding more customer service areas," said Robert Kidd, branch manager.

HomeFed's new location is a free-standing building featuring six teller stations, four personal banking stations and a client information center. The office will have two drive-up AnytimeTeller automated teller machines and safe deposit boxes.

The office hours are Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

With $17.9 billion in assets, HomeFed Bank has more than 200 branches throughout California.

Sheriff's station sponsors pancake breakfast to benefit San Felipe Police

Thanks to the hard work of Sheriff's employees turned chef, the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station Pancake Breakfast was a great success.

The two day event, sponsored by the Sheriff's station and several concerned business leaders, served nearly 350 people and raised over $1400.

Sheriff's Lieutenant Lynne Ziegler said, "It was a success because of the wonderful Sheriff's employees who came in to cook breakfast on their day off. They were just great."

A portion of the money will go to purchase a used San Diego police car which will be donated to the San Felipe Police Department. San Felipe is a small town in Baja California, Mexico with a high tourist trade. The lack of a police car makes it very difficult for San Felipe's police force to do their job and the Lemon Grove Sheriff's station hopes to make their job a little easier with the donation.

The majority of the proceeds from the pancake breakfast will go to needy families in Lemon Grove who may need a little help this holiday season.

Lemon Grove's North Pole

By Lisa Parsons

There's a nip in the air, snow is on the ground and Santa's in his workshop. The North Pole has moved to Lemon Grove, well, at least it looks like the North Pole at 2626 Sheri Lane.

Kathy and Wayne Buttron have turned their home into a winter wonderland following a 20 year Christmas tradition.

People come from all over San Diego to visit Santa and Mrs. Claus, view the holiday decorations and celebrate the spirit of Christmas. About half of the decorations adorning the Buttrons' home have been made by the Buttrons themselves, including Santa and his reindeer arriving on the roof.

"We didn't start out this big," said Wayne Buttron, "we usually add something new every year and we're always thinking ahead to next year."

This year's special features are an animated bear band (Kathy Buttron made their Penguin companions) and an electric train.

"The train took me about three days to put up," Buttron said, "I had to build a track for it and make special fencing to hold the motion triggered lights."

It takes about three weeks for the Buttrons to create the North Pole in their front yard and he said most people say they are either enthusiastic or crazy.

Their enthusiasm (or craziness) comes from an enjoyment of people, he said. "We have between 1200 to 1400 kids visit every year. We keep track through the candy canes."

Young and old come to sit in Santa's lap, visit with Mrs. Claus, munch on a candy cane and share their Christmas wishes.

The Buttrons rent themselves out as the Clauses at Christmas parties to help with the up keep of the decorations and Buttron said he likes to visit the toy stores each year so he's up on the hot items children request. "The Barbie doll is always big," he laughed.

The Christmas bug bit Buttron when he was a little boy in Chicago. "My parents used to take me around to all the Christmas displays and I always said when I grew up I was going to do the same thing."

He is already planning ahead to next year and a speculative gleam lit his eyes as he said, "I was thinking about lazer lights..."

The display is lit up every night at dusk and Mr. and Mrs. Claus can be seen in their workshop on December 9, 10, 16 and 17. Sheri Lane is a cul-de-sac and traffic is heavy, so the Buttrons ask that visitors please park on neighboring streets.

Jim Roache announces candidacy for sheriff

Sheriff's Captain Jim Roache formally announced his candidacy for the office of Sheriff of San Diego County on Tuesday, December 5.

Roache, commander of the Lemon Grove substation, also announced that, due to his decision to run for Sheriff, he will not seek re-election to the San Diego Unified School District Board after 3 years of service.

"It is not an easy step to pursue a course which, at the outset, required me to quit my job or legally challenge my superior just to have the right to exercise my freedom of speech," Roache said, referring to his recent court battle to change a department policy barring employees from challenging the sheriff. He said Duffy, who is running for a sixth, four-year term of office, has been sheriff too long. "I have no personal dislike of Duffy, but my perception is that the public is not being well served at this time."

"I bring an entire career of commitment to excellence in public service to this race. On the job, throughout my pursuit of an MBA and a law degree, and as an elected official in my own right, I have devoted myself to improving our community. My decision to seek the Sheriff's office is not just logical, it is necessary."

Roache outlined the following campaign reforms:

- Improve the management of the jails and make better use of personnel by staffing jails with sworn sheriff's correctional officers rather than deputies trained for law enforcement. Officers could advance along their own career track to jail management instead of being transferred to patrol duties.

- The formation of a citizen's review board to ensure that the Sheriff's department operates efficiently and in a humane manner.

- A move away from outside consulting jobs and more concentration on the daily county business.

- The replacement of sworn deputies in the public relations department with civilians with journalism training.

Bank of America, USMC join in supporting 'Toys for Tots'

Bank of America has teamed up with the United States Marine Corps Reserve to support the annual Toys for Tots campaign.

As an official sponsor of the Corps' 42nd annual Toys for Tots program, Bank of America will open its 850 branches as collection sites for toys, ensuring that hundreds of thousands of needy California youngsters will not be disappointed on Christmas morning.

Customers and non-customers can donate toys at any Bank of America branch. All toys must be new and not gift wrapped. On December 20, the 23 USMC Reserve units in California will make the final pick up of toys from all collection sites. The final phase--distribution of toys--is conducted under the auspices of recognized social welfare agencies.

"Bank of America is proud to participate in this outstanding program which has brought joy to millions of needy children," says Joanne Simas, manager, Lemon Grove Branch. "We hope to encourage large numbers of people to join in the spirit of giving, and have provided convenient drop off sites for their toy contributions."

The U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots program was founded in 1947 by Marine Reserve Colonel Bill Hendricks (Retired). From its start in the Los Angeles area, Toys for Tots has grown into an international program. Last year it distributed 7.3 million toys to 3.5 million children in 50 states and Panama. Pee Wee Herman is Honorary National Chairperson for this year's campaign.

"The toys are given to children who otherwise wouldn't have anything for Christmas," says Captain James Rosenthal of Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 14th Marines at Treasure Island. "I'm delighted with the amount of public support we get for Toys for Tots, but we can always use more toys."

Local Toys for Tots programs are tailored to the specific needs of their local communities. Business sponsors and citizen volunteers assist in the collection and promotion phase of local campaigns.

Heart Association offers holiday health tips

Whether you're watching your weight or controlling your cholesterol, the Holiday Season is no excuse for abandoning your diet. According to the American Heart Association, the best way to keep your weight and cholesterol levels from soaring is to limit your fat intake. They offer these suggestions for party goers:

Eat a low-fat snack at home, so you won't arrive at the party hungry. At the buffet table, take mostly low-fat items. Then skip the high fat foods you don't like a lot and enjoy small servings of the higher fat foods that are your favorites.

If you take a dish to a pot-luck party, be sure to make it a heart-healthy one, so you will have at least one low-fat item to enjoy.

And what about the holiday goodies that invade the office this time of year? Promise yourself one cookie or piece of candy at the end of the day, and with a little luck the dish will be empty by then. A non-food strategy for heart-healthy holidays is to continue your exercise program, and, on Christmas Day, get everyone up off the couch for a walk.

DIVINELY INSPIRED CON MAN

Christmas time encourages religious generosity and charity. It also brings out a little evidence of greed. There are those who have money to invest under the canopy of religious considerations – and of high yield – will become victims of costly frauds. This year the Council of Better Business Bureaus (CBBB) and the North America Securities Administrators Assn. (NASAA) are warning that there is a growing danger of religiously-oriented swindles and suspect schemes being perpetrated.

Some of the schemes are self-proclaimed "Christian" financial planners who often lay claim to being "Divinely inspired." They offer such investments in coins, precious metals and oil-and-gas-well partnerships.

Investments in religious affiliations are indeed popular. They are also financially hazardous.

Religious radio station license syndication scheme was brought to national attention earlier this year by the mysterious flight of Washington communications lawyer, Thomas L. Root, when his small aircraft crashed from 120,000 feet into the Atlantic Ocean near the Bahamas after a 6-hour flight from Washington D.C.

The crash, and the following investigation brought national attention to a radio-station-license scheme which was but one of scores of suspect multi-million investment promotions that are now sweeping through religious communities across North America. Root, it was discovered, represented investors in Sonrise Management Inc. – a Columbus, Georgia firm which touted its "Management With a Christian Ethic" in raising an estimated $16 million.

Funds, it was said, came primarily from fundamentalist Christians for more than 150 unsuccessful radio station license limited partnerships (LPS) such as Holy Spirit FM and Righteous Radio FM. Sonrise, under investigation for more than a year by the Securities Division of the North Carolina Secretary of State, reported, "The problem here is not religion, but the expanding ranks of swindlers who are exploiting religion to fleece unsuspecting members of the flock."

In another case, more than 600 groups in 20 states invested $10 million with the promoter who promised a no-risk, 36% annual return in U.S. Treasury Bill investments.

Investigators found that many of the victims, including the sheriff of Little Rock County, believed that they were dealing with a man of God with extraordinary business abilities. The promoters' records indicate that millions of investor dollars were diverted into a phony "suitcase bank" in the Marshall Islands as part of a Ponzi scheme in which initial investors were paid off with money raised from new investors.

The scheme was headquartered in a $16,000 a month penthouse suite in Van Nuys, CA. The promoter wore a $20,000 diamond-encrusted Rolex watch, collect pricey Spanish porcelain sculptures and was ferried to and from work in a limousine. A former preacher and Sunday school teacher in Arkansas and California, is now serving a 4-year sentence for securities law violations. Another firm whose literature announces that its managers "Are all Christians" offers a sort of poor man's version of tax avoidance through off-shore banking. Investors' funds are placed in 4 supposedly "risk free" banks in Montserrat, British West Indies, with investments made in precious metals, particularly silver bullion and mining stocks. For a $300 loan in "processing fees", investors are promised over $100,000 in unsecured lines of credit. The key promoter of the firm has declared that all U.S. currency is invalid, that the American banking system is unconstitutional and that off-shore banks in question are subject to no U.S. laws. Securities regulators in several states are now investigating the Houston firm which has held local financial planning sessions in communities around the nation.

There are others. One reason for such schemes is the proliferation of religiously-oriented radio and cable television stations, magazines and newspapers. This allows con artists to zero in on their victims and reduce the likelihood of immediate detection by authorities.

Swindlers are able to delay investor complaints by equating their doubts on the lack of religious faith. Many investors are also afraid of embarrassing their church. Thus, crucial months lost to investigators reduce the likelihood that any funds may be recovered for investors.

Boiled down, advice is offered by authorities: "Be cautious if the promoter of an investment opportunity tries to capitalize on connections or a leadership position within a religious group... or if a member of your church springs out of nowhere with a "surefire" investment scheme.

train running through a tunnel in a most beautiful mountain. A whole miniature countryside laid out for the brand new American Flyer Electric train doing its thing over nearly half of the living room floor. The mountain, which was made out of plaster of paris, had miniature trees, lakes, roads, cars, and little people all about. There was not only a mountain and tunnel but all the trimmings to go with it.

"Hey Santa, now I know why you spent so much time in the spare bedroom every night. You were building my mountain," I blurted out loud and clear.

I guess old St. Nick just couldn't resist an answer to such a direct accusation. "If my little boy is happy, then it was all worth it." The myth of Santa Claus had been shattered for all future Christmases.

Money was scarce in those days but my folks still managed an electric train, one of the very first made and costing over $50. Considering my Dad's many weary nighttime hours in our spare bedroom makes it very hard to determine the cost of the mountain-tunnel with all the trimmings.

That particular Christmas was impossible to top so for the next few years, the train and mountain-tunnel scene would be repeated again (but of course without Santa Claus). Each year more accessories were added until the mountain was just too big and heavy to move anymore.

I got to play with and enjoy my most precious toys for only the 2 week holiday season. My mother would then pack it all away up in the attic until the next Christmas. I never did like her procedure but now I can realize how their original investment was stretched over several years. By adding a few new accessories each year to the scene it always appeared new and fresh.

I have since had many wonderful Christmas surprises and expensive gifts but none will ever compare with the suspense and thrill of the "Gala Birthday and Christmas Eve" of 1926.

You have to wonder if, in another life, Jack McKeon rode a white horse. He has rescued Padre fortunes more often than the Lone Ranger saved fair ladies in the Ol' West.

Check his record. McKeon wheeled and dealed the club from near obscurity to the 1984 National League pennant, coaxing one last hurrah out of a handful of well traveled troops.

It was a one time kind of team and quietly faded as the dust of age slowed players into retirement. McKeon was already busy at rebuilding even before the wheels came off the '84 model.

You build a team much as you build a house. You start with a master plan and you sub-contract only with quality professionals.

That's the way McKeon saw his job and that's the way he went about his business. Working long hours and into weekends was all too common for McKeon, who considered his job a labor of love.

Padre owner Joan Kroc misread the needs of her club and added polish and pretense to her front office. Chub Feeney sold her on the idea that McKeon couldn't manage on the field and run the talent side of the business at the same time.

Feeney, who still said "us" when talking about the San Francisco Giants where he has hopefully forever returned, did much damage to the Padres during his short stay in San Diego.

His most damaging maneuver was to remove McKeon from any effective influence over club happenings off the playing field.

Even after Feeney waved goodbye last July, McKeon's counsel was unwanted, unwelcome and went unasked. Polish, pressed pants and pretension replaced sweat, long hours and baseball know-how. McKeon advised his front office to sign pitcher Mark Davis during spring training. The move was vetoed by Dick Freeman, the accounting president of the Padres.

Tony Siegle and Freeman went off to sign free agent pitcher Mark Langston. They never got off an offer before Langston signed with the Anaheim Angels.

McDonald Corp's Chicago based lawyer Fred Lane was assigned the job of resigning Davis, but negotiations remain frozen. That's when Kroc called on McKeon. He took a "forget the lawyers, let's get this thing done approach and in just a little more than 24 hours he traded Sandy Alomar for power hitting center fielder Joe Carter, talks Carter into a 3 year contract, signed free agent relief pitcher Craig Lefferts to another 3 year deal, then signed outfielder Fred Lynn for the coming season.

McKeon, the manager, can't wait to field the team McKeon, the general manager put together.

True, he hasn't got Marks', Langston, or Davis, but the team he does have looks an awful lot like a contender. And chances are, McKeon is not done dealing yet. When is he ever?

Let's hope Kroc keeps McKeon in both jobs and forgets Feeney's idea that one man can't do justice to both positions.

Of course, McKeon would need an executive assistant to keep some kind of order in his double-hatted role.

Padre PR man Bill Beck is ideal for such an assignment. He's hard working, totally baseball minded, loyal to the core, well regarded by his peers and colleagues, skilled in communications and as comfortable to be around as an old pair of shoes.

Beck would certainly lighten McKeon's 2 hatted load and a "Happy Jack" could lead us to another pennant.

Legal blood alcohol level to drop

On the eve of a new year and a new decade, it's traditional to consider changes in life style and habits. There's a new law going into effect January 1, 1990 that should help us all do just that.

For several years now, the presumptive limit for driving under the influence of alcohol – that is, driving drunk – has been a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) of 0.10 percent or more by weight. Under current law a person at or above this level is prohibited from operating a motor vehicle.

The new law lowers that presumptive limit to 0.08 percent. That means that you can be arrested for driving under the influence after fewer drinks than before. The Highway Patrol says that scientific and medical evidence as well as their own field experience shows that a person with a BAC of 0.08 percent does not possess the ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. In tests on driving performance, individuals with a 0.08 percent BAC showed impairment in such critical areas as judgment, reaction time, divided attention, information processing, and perception. Last year in California more than 350,000 drivers were arrested for driving under the influence. 2,510 victims were killed and 65,033 injured in alcohol involved accidents caused by drivers whose BAC was under 0.10 percent.

Society's attitudes toward driving under the influence are changing. It's time to realize that one does not have to be "falling down drunk" to be a hazard on the highway. The skills vital to safely operating a motor vehicle are impaired at a much lower level.

So if you want to contribute toward a happy new year for everyone, pay attention to the 0.08 law. Find an alternative that works for you. An easy solution is choosing a designated driver to safely transport the rest of your group home. Take a cab or a bus. Stay over with friends or get a hotel or motel room. Sure, it may cost a few dollars but it's a far cry from the price of an arrest and conviction for DUI.

Consider what would happen if you were involved in an accident or if you injured or killed an innocent person? That's something you would have to live with the rest of your life. Now, about that New Year's resolution...

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

The most memorable Christmas that really stands out in my youth occurred when I was only 4 years old. With my birthday on December 23rd and Christmas Eve on the 24th, I had to settle for one big gala celebration. My Dad always played "Old St. Nick" and I can remember how good he acted the part. He always sported a red face from too much of the Yule Tide cheer and a big belly from living the "Good Life" so he required very few props or make up. For several months before that special Christmas of 1926 my Dad would disappear nearly every evening into the spare bedroom, lock the door behind him, and sometimes wouldn't emerge until the wee hours of the morning.

The old Santa impersonator was building my most special Christmas present. That room was off limits to me with no questions asked and as I remember he was very strict about his laws. "What's going on in the spare bedroom every night, Dad?"

"You'll find out in good time Son so try and trust me until Christmas Eve," was his stern reply.

The big night finally came and I was put to bed earlier than usual to give my Mom and Dad time to set up the big surprise. I was awakened from a very light sleep by some loud "Ho, Ho, Hos."

As soon as I reached the bottom of the stairs the big red faced Santa Claus met me, still doing his Ho, Ho's. He took my trembling little sweaty hand and led me into the living room. The first thing my sleepy eyes focused on was the gigantic, dazzling decorated Christmas tree. With my mouth wide open in bewilderment my eyes slowly followed the big tree down to the floor. And there winding around the underneath of the tree was a spectacular display of all little boys' dreams. In the midst of it all was a

Peel and Stick mail labels aren't tacky, says postmaster

"The hand addressing of Christmas cards and packages has become an ironclad tradition," says Lemon Grove Postmaster Dennis C. Dorman. "I'd like you to consider breaking it this year. If you're a personal computer user, why not use your machine to print peel-and-stick labels? A printed address -- in the proper format -- only requires a quick glance by a distribution clerk to speed it on its way."

"Peel-and-stick labels are a real time saver and allow you to spend more time on the sentiments inside," says Dorman. "They are also far easier to read than colored inks on red or green envelopes."

Postmaster Dorman, doesn't want you to throw away those colorful envelopes, just put computer-printed or typed address labels on -- and break the hand written address tradition.

If you don't use computer printed labels, here are a few tips on hand addressing to improve readability and speed your holiday greetings through the mail:

Print the address; black ink on a light colored envelope is best.

Keep a uniform left margin, use all capital letters. Make sure they don't touch each other.

Eliminate all punctuation except for the hyphen when you use the ZIP+4 Codes.

Make sure the city/state/ZIP Code line is at least one inch above the bottom edge.

Spell out the city name, but use the two letter abbreviation for states. Use a single space between words and between the state abbreviation and the ZIP Code.

Do not use the name of a building in place of the street address. In rural addresses, the route number should precede the box number.

Use the abbreviations AVE, ST, LN and RD for avenue, street, lane and road, and use only the first letter for north, south, east or west.

"These tips are not just for the Christmas season," Dorman says, "Proper addressing should be used on every piece of mail, every day of the year."

San Diego S.P.C.A. gives pet owners holiday safety tips

To help ensure a safe and happy holiday season for pets, the San Diego Humane Society and S.P.C.A. urges pet owners to follow these safety tips:

1) Tree decorations like tinsel, icicles, glass or plastic ornaments, and hooks may be tempting for your pet to chew -- but they could injure your pet's mouth, throat, or intestines. Items under the tree like plastic decorations on gifts, ribbons, unwrapped gifts such as leather belts or wallets, and any kind of food or candy gifts should also be kept out of your pet's reach.

2) Mistletoe berries and the water in your tree stand are poisonous if your pet ingests either of them. Keep your pet away from the oak berries and cover the stand's water.

3) Since animals can't digest people food very well, especially in excess, avoid giving your pet table scraps or letting him or her near the garbage pail or trash can. Remember, too, that turkey or chicken bones splinter easily and can hurt your pet. And an ingredient in chocolate is actually fatal for dogs! The best treats to give your pet are the ones made especially for its species.

4) Puppies, kittens, rabbits and guinea pigs find electrical cords tempting to chew. Chewing on these cords though, can cause burns in and around your pet's mouth, cause a household fire, or electrocute your pet.

5) Prevent your pet from toppling your Christmas tree and getting hurt by securing the tree to a wall with cord.

The San Diego Humane Society and S.P.C.A. recommends that pet owners share these tips with family members and houseguests. Dedicated to protecting animals since 1880, the San Diego Humane Society serves all of San Diego County through adoptions, animal cruelty investigations, humane education presentations, pet assisted therapy visits and emergency animal rescues.

The Society does not receive any tax support and runs on tax-deductible donations.

Shelters need donations

For the fourth straight year, San Diego's homeless will find shelter and holiday cheer in Plaza Hall at the Community Concourse downtown over Christmas. Mayor O'Connor's Holiday Shelter will provide over 1,000 needy individuals access to medical attention, showers, barbers, clothing, meals, beds and entertainment for three nights beginning the evening of December 23rd and ending the morning of December 26th.

"What makes this shelter so special are the volunteers," says Mayor O'Connor. "They treat each person coming into the shelter as if he or she were a 'guest' in their own home."

O'Connor says the shelter still needs some help from the public. "We are in desperate need of blankets. They should be in reasonably good condition and clean." She adds that the blankets, which each guest will get to keep, can be dropped off at any of the following locations during normal business hours:

Neighborhood House Association, 841 S. 41st Street; Endeavors, 531 16th Street; Catholic Charities, 349 Cedar Street; Episcopal Community Services, 3776 4th Ave.

Those wishing to volunteer for a shift at the shelter should contact the Regional Task Force on the Homeless at 239-4800.

Local businesses stage annual benefit

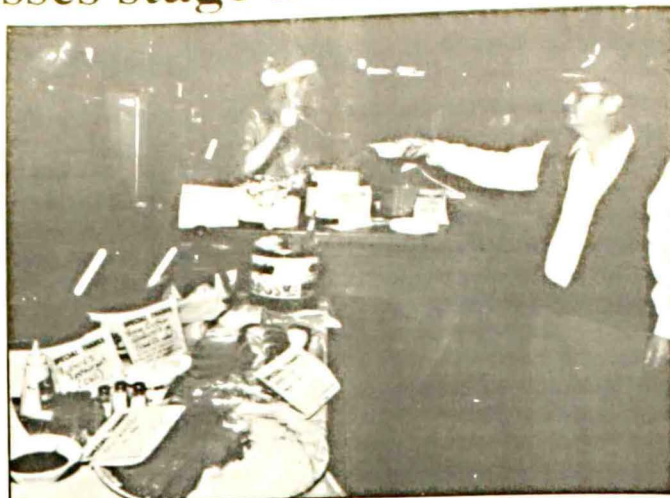

The Adopt-A-Child Program received a boost from the Pelikan Pub's Fourth Annual Christmas Benefit last Sunday.

This year's benefit featured soup from several different local businesses and a raffle.

"We asked people to bring some sort of canned food or an unwrapped toy and then they sampled soup for $1 a bowl," said Kathy Magnuson, who, along with her partner Terry Heydlauff, organized the benefit.

The Pub's proprietors asked local businesses to help with the benefit and, "we didn't get turned down by anybody," said Magnuson. "Each business donated something - soup or a door prize."

Heydlauff said, "We had a good turn out. We raised $134 in soup sales and we have a steamer trunk full of toys and canned foods."

The Pelikan Pub will continue its toy and food drive until December 20th.

Congregations appeal for freedom

Since February, 1989, when the governors of the interior provinces of Burundi instituted a wave of persecution against Jehovah's Witnesses, many members have suffered beatings, torture and imprisonment. The general public first learned of this when the Aug. 15 issue of The Watchtower carried the details of the persecution. Readers were asked to write to Burundi President Buyoya and respectfully make an appeal that the persecution be halted and that Jehovah's Witnesses receive official recognition as an established religion in Burundi.

All congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses in La Mesa, Lemon Grove and Spring Valley sent official letters of appeal to President Buyoya and hundreds of local Witnesses mailed personal letters concerning the attacks on innocent Christian people. The international news media has begun to assist in the effort, and while the persecution continues, some slight improvements have been seen in that a few Witnesses have been provisionally released from prison. The efforts of those who protested to President Buyoya are much appreciated by those persecuted in Burundi.

Friends, co-workers throw retirement party for San Diego Trust's Bob Guest Fellow employees and friends gathered to say farewell to Bob Guest Dec. 7 at a retirement party held at the San Diego Trust and Savings Bank in Lemon Grove.

Guest, who has also worked at the United States National Bank and Crocker Bank in Lemon Grove, was honored at the party by being named the 1990 Grand Marshall of the Old Time Days parade by Steve Aldrich, President of the Lemon Grove Old Time Days Association.

Bob and Katie Guest were presented tickets for a cruise on the Mississippi paddle wheeler the "Delta Queen" by Sam Wagstaff. The Delta Queen holds special significance to Guest because after the war he had the opportunity to captain the Delta Queen from California, through the Panama Canal, to its home in Mississippi, but he declined the opportunity in order to return home as quickly as possible. Guest said he has always been sorry he missed that unique voyage.

Right before Christmas, our Vice Mayor LOIS HEISERMAN is scheduled for eye surgery. She had her "druthers" about waiting until after the holidays or getting it done now. Never one to put off 'til tomorrow, etc., Lois decided to get it over with at the earliest possible time. Can't help but wonder if the patch will be decked out in holiday sparkle. Good luck, Lois.

A little snooping brought a humorous note to light, the other day. The building scheduled for demolition, at the corner of Olive and Church Streets, encroaches on the parking lot at City Hall. Seems the window and door on the east side of the house juts over the line, so to speak.

New hours have been added at the FOOD FACTORY on Broadway. Early risers can now enjoy breakfast on Saturday, and/or lunch for that matter. Bob will be cooking 'til noon, every Saturday. It's a favorite sippin' and chewing' spot of mine. If you haven't tried it, give it consideration.

Gleaned from an article in the latest AARP Bulletin - Thirty nine million Social Security enrollees will get a 4.7 percent increase in benefits next month (cost of living adjustment). The 4.7 percent increase also applies to the 4.5 million disabled poor and elderly who get Supplemental Security Income. And Social Security beneficiaries under 70 years of age will be allowed to earn more next year without losing benefit dollars.

That certainly sounds interesting, but there is a down side, too. As Congress moves to curtail or repeal the catastrophic health care program older Americans face higher premiums in private supplemental insurance policies -- Medigap insurance.

The Blue Cross/Blue Shield Association estimates the repeal could cause premiums to raise from 15 to 43 percent and covering inflation cost could add another 5 to 33 percent to the premium. AARP recommends contacting your state insurance department for additional information.

DID YOU KNOW... Some 350,000 served in the military during World War II? Some were prisoners of the Japanese when Bataan and Corregidor fell; some ferried military planes through out the U.S. and abroad; some cared for the wounded. When WW II ended 280,000 women were on active duty.

If you have news items for the LEMON GROVE REVIEW, questions or concerns within the community, or need information, call me at 464-4274 between noon and 3:00 PM Tuesday thru Friday.

I'll try to help or find someone who can.

San Diego YMCA honors Lemon Grove principals

The YMCA of San Diego County is the largest provider of child care in this country. It serves over 2,000 children in 60 child care sites, the majority of them in afterschool child care. As the oldest and largest youth and family serving organization, it is proud of its ability to assess the needs of the community and respond with programs such as child care to meet those needs.

This past week a recognition breakfast to honor principals of schools, and ministers of churches was held at the La Jolla Marriott to thank them for their joint efforts with the YMCA to deliver quality child care to the San Diego community.

The Davis YMCA honored the following principals in the Lemon Grove School District: Glen Heath - Monterey Heights Elementary School, Dr. Donn Griffiths - San Altos Elementary School, Frank Patrick - San Miguel Elementary School, Daniel Heiserman - Vista La Mesa Elementary School.
